Shiloh Schools Celebrate "Read Across America Day"

by Lynn Holm

In honor of "Read Across America Day", Shiloh Schools hosted two assemblies for students, pre-kindergarten through junior high on Wednesday, February 27.

Recording artist and entertainer Billy Craig came from Michigan to share his passion for music and reading with his "I Love This School" concert. His catchy

The first show began at 1:30 p.m. in the Shiloh gymnasium for all PK – 6th grade students. Staff and students enjoyed the positive message about community, reading and anti-bullying. That evening, students were invited to come back with their families to enjoy a second show.

songs, such as "Keep Your Hands to Yourself" and "Reading Rocks", had the audience on their feet and dancing while teaching important messages about reading and positive behavior.

To kick off the evening concert, an open house began at 6:00 PM with cookies and lemonade. The open house showcased projects that parents and students created together featuring a favorite book or character. Students and families who returned projects to school received an award for participation.

After the concert, door prizes were awarded and families had the chance to meet Billy Craig while he signed autographs. The events were sponsored by S.H.I.P., Shiloh Libraries, Pre-K and Title.

Sixteen years ago, the National Education Association founded "Read Across America Day" to honor Dr. Seuss' birthday, which is March 2. It is a special day when schools, libraries, and families in the entire nation bring kids and books together.

Remember These Buildings?

This section of Newman was on the north side of the Park in the downtown area, commonly referred to as the Opera House Block. This photo dated 1910, shows the Opera House in the upper floor along with a restaurant, a dentist office and other stores along the front. Can the readers identify any other storefronts then in existence from that period? The card along with others was purchased in Tuscola at an auction two weeks ago by the Editor.

Early DAR Members Part of Suffrage Movement 1913- 2013

On March 3, 2013 members of the Daughters of the American Revolution joined in a parade with 5,000 women from 13 other national institutions and organizations to commemorate the Suffrage Centennial. This is the 100th anniversary of the 1913 Woman Suffrage Act, also known as the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The National Archives will display the 19th Amendment which will be the last time to see this document until 2020.

The Daughters of the American Revolution has a number of ties to the women’s suffrage movement of the 1890s to the early 1920s. Many well-known suffragists were also DAR members, including Susan B. Anthony, Alice Paul, Mary Garrett Hay, Julia Ward Howe, Belva Lockwood, Harriet Taylor Upton, Sue Shelton White, and Frances Willard.

A new exhibition in the Daughters of the American Revolution Museum in Washington, D.C. shows the inherent connection of the subject matter to the DAR. The exhibition entitled “Fashioning the New Woman” examines women in the era of the founding of DAR: 1890. Images of the costumes from the era can be viewed at www.dar.org/fashioningthenewwoman.

The first members of the DAR were part of a larger trend in the United States: that is, women were creating clubs of many kinds, from literary and other cultural clubs, to historical and genealogical societies, to organizations with goals or social activism. Suffrage banners and other artifacts, including letters written by Susan B. Anthony pertaining to the suffrage movement are also a part of the exhibition. The exhibition can be seen online: www.dar.org/suffragecentennialalexhibition.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Hi, Everyone,

Here I am again, starting the annual campaign for the Freedom Festival Fireworks Fund. This next Saturday night, March 9, we will hold the second annual Soup Supper at the Newman American Legion from 4-7. Come on by and have a meal of soup, sandwich, and dessert. Donations are accepted and all of the donations will be used in the purchase of the fireworks. Although the Soup Supper is an important fund-raiser towards keeping this traditional part of the Freedom Festival alive, it doesn’t raise all of the money needed. I will again be talking to organizations, businesses, and individuals asking for donations to make this happen. There is a bank account at First Neighbors Bank in Newman and donations also will be accepted there. I realize that a lot of traditions are being eliminated because of economics, but I’m hoping we as a community can work together to preserve the tradition of the fireworks at the Freedom Festival. Watching the faces of my grandsons as they watch the fireworks is priceless. And to tell the truth, Grampie enjoys them too.

We will appreciate any help you can offer.

Respectfully,
Jim Biddle

Trooper Gary Scott Retires

Gary D. Scott, age 62, has retired from the Indiana State Police force after 34 years of distinguished service. His first entry into law enforcement was as a Security Police Officer in the United States Air Force from 1969 to 1973. Gary Scott served as a police officer in Newman for a short time from 1975 through 1977 following his service with the Air Force. After attending the Indiana State Police academy, Gary was assigned to Lowell District (#13) on road patrol on January 2, 1979, beginning his career of continued service of upholding the law.

Among the many accomplishments during his tenure with the Indiana State Police, Mr. Scott participated in Operation Bar-Tab from 1982-1987 investigating judges in Lake County courts who were accused of fixing DUI tickets. The FBI-led inquiry resulted in a total of 19 individuals being charged, including two judges, a deputy prosecutor, and several other persons associated with court proceedings. Officer Scott was awarded the Distinguished Hoosier Award in January of 1989 for his work in the case.

He went on to provide assistance to the U.S. EPA's investigation of the Hammond Sanitary District who illegally dumped 14 billion gallons of untreated waste water into the Calumet River. His work with the EPA lasted from 1990 to 1993.

From 1996 to 1998, Officer Scott's temporary duty assignment (TDY) was as a member of the Gary Response Investigative Team (G.R.I.T.) where he again worked with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and assisted the City of Gary with their out of control homicides and other violent crimes. In 1996 Gary was the "Murder Capital of the United States." The G.R.I.T. Task force was established by Attorney General Janet Reno.

Between the years of 2003 to 2007, Gary Scott's TDY was a detail with the U.S. Secret Service investigating bank and wire fraud. Suspects in the case ranged from Chicago street gangs to international criminal groups. Chinese, Nigerian, Russian, and Columbian individuals were involved in wrongdoing. A total of 89 suspects were charged during the resolution of the investigation. U.S. Secret Service Director Mark Sullivan awarded Mr. Scott a commendation in 2008 for the part he played in the investigation.

During his final duty assignment, Gary assisted the FBI again with their Public Corruption Task Force, investigating public corruption cases where public officials of local cities and counties were involved in multimillion dollar mortgage fraud schemes. Eleven individuals were indicted following the police work that lasted from 2008 to 2013. After the completion of the assignment, FBI Director Robert S. Mueller III awarded Officer Scott a commendation for the part he played in bringing the corrupt officials to justice.

Perhaps the most dramatic moment of his successful career came during a shooting/stabbing incident in Hebron, Indiana. The suspect fired on the responding officers before attempting escape. During the flight he used his two children (ages 8 and 5) as human shields. The suspect was tackled and disarmed of a 38 caliber pistol and a 12 gauge shotgun. Gary was awarded the Silver Star for heroism during the confrontation.

What does such successful and highly decorated officer do now, one might ask? He relaxes, of course! Gary resides with his wife, Joyce L. Thode, whom he married in July of 1969 in their home in Cedar Lake, Indiana; 15 miles south of Hammond. Gary is also the proud father of two children: his daughter, Holly (Scott) Fisher, who also lives in Cedar Lake with her two kids; and a son named Jay who is a Master Sergeant in the United States Air Force, currently stationed in Fairbanks, Alaska. Jay has served as a fireman for 17 years in the Air Force.

Gary's parents are Marjorie and Wally Hahn of Newman, IL and Dale and Theda Scott of Arthur, IL.

The Newman Independent would like to congratulate Gary Scott on his retirement following such an illustrious career of public service.

Health Notes Douglas County Health Department

By Amanda Minor, Director, DCHC

Family Traditions Merge with National School Breakfast Week

Growing up my dad always cooked us breakfast. Yes, I said COOKED, and I said, DAD. First let’s talk about COOKING a breakfast. Due to the morning hustle and push to get parents and kids to work and school on time, it becomes harder and harder to provide a healthy breakfast in a short time frame for the family. It is easier to pop something in the toaster or pour milk over sugary cereals.

Cereals were created to help with digestion in patients staying at “Sanitariums” or “Health Spas” in the late 1800’s. They were first introduced as Granola and Corn Flakes; becoming very successful in place of pork for the morning breakfast. Later in 1953, Sugar Smacks were introduced containing 56% sugar and starting the cereal explosion by adding sugars and placing prizes in the box for children everywhere. Eggs and bacon faded as the morning staple.

During the time of the cereal explosion occurred, other events were transpiring as well. Many experts believe the first upswing of obesity (BMI values) started after WWI, with a decline during the Great Depression, and then an accelerated upswing after WWII. Komlos and Brabec (2010) propose the following as irresistible, impersonal, and technological forces that attribute to the changes;

- the major labor-saving technological changes of the 20th century,
- the industrial processing of food and with it the spread of fast-food eateries (To illustrate the spread of fast food culture, consider that White Castle, the first drive-in restaurant, was founded in 1921. McDonald started operation in the late 1940s, Kentucky Fried Chicken in 1952, Burger King in 1954, Pizza Hut in 1958, Taco Bell in 1962, and Subway in 1962.),

Norovirus Outbreaks – Stay Healthy, Wash Your Hands

provided by: Lana Sanstrom, LEHP

“Stomach bug” circulating

SPRINGFIELD—No doubt you probably know of someone who has been sick with a “stomach bug” this year, typically caused by norovirus. Norovirus causes vomiting and diarrhea and is very contagious. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), more than 80 percent of norovirus outbreaks occur from November to April. The CDC estimates that more than 20 million people, or about one in every 15 Americans, are infected with norovirus.

“Norovirus is the most common cause of stomach illness in the country,” said Illinois Department of Public Health Director Dr. LaMar Hasbrouck. “However, the easiest way to avoid becoming ill is to wash your hands. Viruses can contaminate surfaces and objects touched by someone who is ill. If your hand then comes in contact with your mouth, chances are you will end up becoming ill.”

Norovirus can spread quickly from person to person in crowded places like schools, long-term care facilities and daycare centers. A person who is ill and prepares or serves catered meals or food in a restaurant can contaminate food, causing others to become ill.

Symptoms of norovirus infection usually include diarrhea, vomiting, nausea and stomach cramping. Other, less common symptoms may include low-grade fever, chills, headache, muscle aches and general sense of fatigue. Norovirus illness is usually not serious and most people are better in a day or two. But, norovirus illness can be serious in young children, the elderly and people with other health conditions. According to the CDC, norovirus causes more than 70,000 hospitalizations and 800 deaths in the U.S. each year.

Tips for avoiding norovirus:

- Frequently wash your hands, especially after toileting and before eating or preparing food.
- Thoroughly clean and disinfect contaminated surfaces immediately using a bleach-based cleaner. Or use one part bleach to nine parts water (1:10 dilution).
- Increase the frequency of cleaning high touch surfaces such as door knobs.
- Do not work as a food handler while you are ill with diarrhea or vomiting. For more information on norovirus, log onto www.idph.state.il.us/public/hb/hbnorovirus.htm.

- the introduction of radio and television broadcasting,
- the increasing participation of women in the work force, and
- the IT revolution.

My dad is a farmer and he especially knows how to start off the day right: a good breakfast. Being a farmer, he is required to perform physical work for long periods of time and may not eat again until supper. So, his breakfast needs to provide the necessary nutrients and energy to sustain him for most of the day. He passed this on to my brother and me and because of his influence my breakfast accounts for about half of my caloric intake for the day. My breakfast contains vegetables, protein, whole grains, and fruits. This helps me make better choices during the day and gives me the necessary nutrients and energy to perform at my best.

All children need to understand the importance of incorporating vegetables, fruit, whole grains, and proteins into their breakfast. It is shown that a healthy breakfast can help improve concentration and performance in the classroom and give more strength and endurance to help in physical activity during the day. Just by eating a healthy breakfast with a variety of foods, including; fruits, vegetables, whole grains, low-or non-fat dairy, and lean protein, children will be able to perform better and make healthier food choices throughout the day.

During the first week in March most children will be participating in the Illinois Standard Achievement Tests (ISAT). It is no coincidence that this week is also National School Breakfast Week. Many schools throughout the United States will be participating and providing information and healthy breakfast options to students and families. If your child does not participate in the school breakfast program, there are still very good resources and recipes that can help provide a nutritious and fulfilling breakfast during the morning rush. The internet has many good resources; however, choose reliable and trustworthy websites. Some of these are Eatingwell.com, Parenting.com, and WebMD.

As parents we need to set our children up for success in every way and help them grow up to be healthy adults. By providing a balanced, nutritious breakfast each morning you are giving your child a rewarding, powerful start to the day. What could be better than a nutritious breakfast? So this week make it a point to start with this great change during testing and see the positive changes begin to happen. I know I will.

"From the Sidelines: Observations from a Sports Fan"

By: Tim Hendershot

Bouncing Back With Heart: 2012-2013 Shiloh Lady Raiders

Throughout the histories of all sports teams, there are times where one game or one moment suddenly occurs that the fans do not expect to happen. When that moment or occurrence happens, it gives those involved with the team or organization a sense of clarity or reflection that normally doesn't come into play when things are going smoothly. Since its formation, the history of the Shiloh Raiders girls' basketball program has been a rich one with some of its best years being during the mid and late 1980s with four straight trips to the IHSA State tournament. The program recently has seen that type of rich history with another 4th place finish in the 2010-2011 season. The 2011-2012 season was looking to become another possibility of getting back towards another deep run being 25-4 and hosting both the regional and sectional rounds and not having to leave the confines of home. That was, until the season came to an abrupt end by the Heritage Hawks. The question going into this season was how would the program respond to that type of unexpected loss and get back towards being one of the top programs in the area. What transpired was a season where the team had one of its toughest seasons to date and had to overcome more ups and downs than they have seen, but showed the heart and determination to make their own mark on the history of the program to bounce back and win their fourth regional title in six years and make up from that stunning loss in post-season play a year ago. FTS will honor this year's squad and talk about how next year will have similar situations that the program has had to face before.

I have to say that I am very proud of how our senior class stepped up in different tasks that were asked to be performed. Shelby Smith had to start the season running the offense due to certain circumstances, but once those were cleared up, she went back to being the scorer that she has been used to being. Morgan Wood really came into her own this season actually stepping up in certain games being the leading scorer along with being one of the top three-point shooters in the area finished with 78 made for the year, which was the second most in the area. Betsy Bogle did have some ups and downs this season, but used what she learned from watching her older sister Lauren to make the necessary adjustments and never say die attitude to take the reigns and make the key plays.

Both Kayla Balogh and Katie Starkey came in when the team had starters in foul trouble and even though their numbers may have been low statistics wise, the minutes they put in and the so called "little things" that were performed on the court are aspects that teams are built on to become a unified group. One other person who didn't get the opportunity this season to play due to reasons beyond anyone's control, but should be recognized is Stephanie Hunt. I know that you wished you were out there, but trust me you are a part of the program as well. Thank you ladies for the service you brought during your careers.

Now, to the aspect and situation that next year's team will be facing that will be similar to what the program has had to go through. Back in 2009, the Raiders finished 32-2 getting to the Elite Eight. The next season, the Raiders had to fill 60% of their starting lineup. The team still ended up 28-2. Next year's version of the Blue and Gold, you now face that similar situation. Lauren Moses, Bethany McGinness, and Haylee Buckellew, it will be your turns to shine. Lauren has already shown that flash this season ending the year strong in the final two games along with being that constant vocal voice that her teammates need. Bethany has become the "blue-collar" type of player who didn't make a whole lot of noise during the regular season, but when it came to the start of the post-season showed why she can become a scoring threat and go-to player to make the necessary shots. Haylee showed a lot of improvement and grew into becoming a go-to shooter during the junior varsity games and once she gets into a zone, I feel that she will pick up some of the scoring that will be lost. The younger players will also have the opportunity of a lifetime with three starting spots open and must know that they must use the off-season to work on their skills and improve their conditioning to endure the speed and flow of the game at the varsity level. All of these players have been in this system since their junior high days and that will be a helpful key, but the drive, heart, and desire to work on their individual strengths and weaknesses will be most important in keeping the winning tradition alive. Keep that in mind and I think that you will be fine.

Dave and Missy Tingley have put their heart and soul into the entire girls' basketball program for the past eleven years and the success it is brought has been a breath of fresh air. With changes coming to the LOVC in 2014-2015, next season will be a huge one in terms of how the team performs as one of the top teams in the league. The other league schools showed very big improvements this past season and the road will be even tougher next year. One thing is for sure, the pride and passion of the Blue and Gold is running stronger than ever for these ladies. It showed this season and I hope that it will continue showing that honor for your school and community is something you can feel proud of. It is why it keeps a community together and brings unification within us all.

Journey for Furgeson Ends in Three-Point Showdown

by: Tim Hendershot

The run for the Shiloh Raiders boys' basketball team may have ended two weeks ago in Chrisman, but one player still had an opportunity to continue on. Cyrus Furgeson carried on the honor of the Blue and Gold with his 11 of 15 shooting performance in the Chrisman regional in the 2013 Country Financial Three-Point to advance to last Friday night's Danville Schlarman sectional round with a chance to grab one of four spots available to advance to the state preliminary round at Carver Arena in Peoria on the line. He along with 15 other shooters from the four regional sites of Chrisman, Gilman, Arcola, and Broadlands took to the arc to see who will get the chance of a lifetime. Unfortunately for Raider fans, Furgeson saw his run come to an end as he was unable to advance. The four shooters to advance from the sectional round to Peoria were John Porter of the Chrisman Cardinals, Spencer Garner of the Central A&M Raiders, the duo of Kyle Fletcher and Nick Walwer of the Donavon Wildcats. Furgeson was a part of a Raiders squad that went 22-9 overall and 8-2 in the LOVC helping capture a league tournament title during the season, which is the first type of league crown since 2000. This year's squad was coached by Charlie Carver. Basketball Central salutes Cyrus and his efforts in this year's competition and looks for bigger things to come in 2013-2014.

Duke Bagger Stars in Theater Season Opener

The Charleston Alley Theatre will open its 23rd season with Craig Wright's absurdist comedy, "Mistakes Were Made." The play has been described as "...an ever escalating farce of warped thinking, deranged egos and the sweaty, megalomaniacal quest for the spotlight..." —Chicago Sun-Times.

The show begins March 15 at the theatre located at 718 Monroe Avenue. It will run for 8 performance dates. They are March 15, 16, 17, 22, 23, 24 at 7:30 and March 18 and 25 at 2:00 p.m. The Charleston Alley Theatre is a small, intimate theatre, and reservations are recommended. Reservations may be made by calling (217) 345-2287 and leaving a message. Tickets will also be available for all performances from one hour before curtain and up until curtain time.

"Mistakes were Made" is basically a one-character show, with most of the action taking place on a multitude of telephone lines. Duke Bagger stars as Felix Artifex, an exhausted, fast-talking, second-class theatrical producer beaten by the splendor of his ambitions. Felix gets in way over his head when he takes on an epic about the French Revolution. Bigheaded movie stars, obstinate writers, his estranged wife and a truckload of sheep being held captive in a foreign desert, are no obstacles for Felix! Through his wheedling and needling he meets all challenges. However, Felix is seemingly unaware of the world crashing down around him. His "office mate" and sounding board is his dangerously over loved and over bloated fish. Jeffrey Augenstein, puppet master, cleverly creates the symbolic and hapless fish. Felix's perky secretary, played by Jacquelyn Armstrong, is a grinding voice on the speakerphone. She shouts out the news that another call has come through, or another caller has hung up.

Bagger creates a character study of a man, seeking redemption, but unavoidably creating ruin. Bagger's portrayal of Felix Artifex, a show biz huckster, brings warped priorities, artistic compromise and the hunger for success, to front stage.

Craig Wright is an American playwright and Emmy-nominated television writer. At the early start of his career, Craig Wright's play, "Molly's Delicious" was produced at the CAT and directed by Charleston Alley Theatre founder, Tanya Wood. His latest play, "Grace," was recently showcased as one of TIME Magazine's top ten dramas for 2012.

Tickets are $10. The Charleston Alley Theatre is located just off the Square, across from the Will Rogers movie theater, and down the alley! The Charleston Alley Theatre is handicapped accessible.

Duke Bagger is married to Linda Bagger, former high school English teacher at Newman High School from 1966 -1991. submitted by Phyllis Bayles

Off to the Military Collector Show by Dana Hales

Kim McGee and I, along with Hal Livengood of Villa Grove and Tom Webb of Toledo-Jewett area took off Friday morning at 3:30AM and traveled to Louisville, KY for another adventure at the Show of Shows. This was the 17th year that Kim and I had gone to the collector's event. While there, we tried to take in the whole arena of 1800 display tables of sale items and display groups from all periods of military history from the American Revolution to Desert Storm. Concurrent with the SOS Show is an 1800 table gun show we were able to attend.

Craig Gottlieb of Craig Gottlieb Militaria, featured on television's "Pawn Stars" as an expert on military collectables was there with an interesting guest. Olivia Black of the "Pawn Stars" television series was there to great and talk with the show attendees. Hal took my picture with Olivia in front of the booth. Just one of the many surprises at the show. We got back home around 8:30PM, tired but again happy with our trip and the treasures we brought home. This was the 23rd annual Show of Shows and it continues to grow as one of the premier military collector shows in the country.
